

Nomination for CPMEC Junior Doctor of the Year Award 2022

AUSTRALIAN CAPITAL TERRITORY – Dr James MILLER

Dr Miller is a PGY1 at the Canberra Health Service and demonstrates his passion for education and training in his role as Associate Clinical Skills tutor teaching to medical students at Australian National University.

James is also a mentor for the 'Together in Health' interprofessional challenge; a multidisciplinary challenge involving students from medicine and allied health from Australian National University and University of Canberra.

He organised a women's health workshop targeted at PGY1 and 2 medical officers, and has developed a simulated interactive medical session (SIM) on an obstetric emergency aimed at PGY1-3 in collaboration with the Obstetrics and Gynaecology and SIM departments at The Canberra Hospital (TCH).

James has presented his research findings on intravenous iron to TCH iron working group. He has organised mock clinical examinations for final year medical students.

James is an intern representative on the Canberra Region Medical Education Council, a committee member of the AMA Council of Doctors in Training, and is chair of the ACT Prevocational Obstetrics and Gynaecology Society.
